FactSet Named Best Research and Analytics Tool at the 2015 Systems in the City Awards

July 10, 2015

FactSet was named Best Research and Analytics tool at the Goodacre Systems in the City Awards in London on July 9.

FactSet helps the world's wealth managers deliver differentiating service to their clients. FactSet's solution combines in-house research and client data with market data and sophisticated analytics so wealth managers can make better investment decisions for their clients. They monitor client portfolio performance and risk with FactSet's desktop analytics, mobile applications, reporting tools, and comprehensive data feeds.

"FactSet's solution for wealth managers is truly industry-leading, from the breadth of market data, to robust portfolio analytics and multi-asset class security research. We are pleased to have been recognized by Goodacre and among our peers for our solution," said Greg King, Senior Vice President at FactSet.

The Systems in the City Awards take place annually to recognize the leading service and system suppliers to the regulated financial community. The awards are managed by Goodacre UK, the leading specialist consultancy for the securities industry.
