

FactSet Expands Australia Operations, Opens Office in Melbourne

August 31, 2016

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 31, 2016 -- FactSet, a leading provider of integrated financial information and analytical applications, today announced it is strengthening its presence in the Asia Pacific region, opening a new office in Melbourne. The new office will work in combination with the Company's operations in Sydney to serve its growing client base in Australia and New Zealand.

The Melbourne office, located in the heart of the central business district at 31 Queen Street, is staffed by experienced members of FactSet's dedicated client account teams and industry-leading consultants. The new office gives investment professionals direct access to FactSet's in-depth insight, powerful analytics and comprehensive data sets.

"For almost two decades, clients in Australia have partnered with FactSet across asset classes and at every stage of the investment process," explains Alan Bettridge, Senior Vice President and Regional Director for FactSet in the Asia Pacific Region. "This new office will allow us to expand our support and services for local clients while expanding our presence in the local investment community."
